visitors showed up!) Now for this week's prose:

Lecherous stepped in towards the last minute as "Trailmaster" to set this run because the scheduled hare was just not ever going to be in BKK at the time. Thanks Lindsay! From an early arrival on an International flight, sleep deprived, Lecherous proceeded to set the run in familiar territory and he even recc'd the run (or so he said). Even The BUG turned up for the Sunday Hash, why? you may well ask?! Well, I guess it is his old haunt in Praphadaeng and maybe he felt the need for a few quick beers on the sabbath.

Following a few instructions, the pack dawdled off towards the pier at Wat Khlong Toei Nok and embarked at the usual point onto a long-tail which then splashed across the river to the run start point. From this point on, a little sweat, a little mud and quite a bit of concrete was to be the trail.

Following down the usual road at the first intersection we had the first check, could go left, right, straight but not back. It went right over the humpy bridge and then left along the concrete khlong-way (that's a highway along the khlong). It looked like it was going to be all concrete until at last Lecherous took us off the trail into the orchards and some mud, some huts, some wet soupy shiggy to jump over and then out again (surprise surprise) to the main road. There isn't that much you can do but he did manage to get us off the road a bit & from time to time. It looked like a big left hander and true to form it was. We ran the khlong-ways, byways hither & yon and then entered the Park for a nice long trail that meandered through the parkland and upon which Narest was not paying attention (he was reportedly talking on the phone, but I think that's crap, because reception in Praphadaeng is CRAP), but nonetheless he tripped on a branch and went down heavily. Covered in mud and some blood, he never skipped a beat, rolled over and got up and kept on running. Didn't even bother to dust himself off. He received his just reward at the circle later from the GM for bravery under fire. Nice trail through the park and then back onto the concrete khlong-way and left onto more khlong-way and then road and then the on in. It was a nice run through the dense orchards and jungle in Praphadaeng and I always enjoy going there, even though it is more and more difficult to actually "get on the ground"

Road take the elevated turn at Seacon Square and work your way back to Srinakarin Road – turn left, heading towards Paradise Park, as above.

An underpass is being constructed at the Srinakarin/ Udom Suk intersection, so traffic moves very slowly.

From BTS On Nut, exit on Tesco Lotus side, take a taxi toward and down On Nut Road until it intersects Srinakarin Road. Turn right down Srinakarin and follow above directions once you pass Seacon Square.

From Rama IX Expressway, exit at Srinakarin Road towards Bangna, cross Pattanakan and On Nut intersections, look for Seacon Square on your left. Follow instructions above.

(Gentlemen only; by Invitation)

because development has build more, better roads & klong-ways now and we can still run the pristine jungle without getting our feet in the shiggy! WHICH is both good and bad!

Back at the pier awaiting the return to the Wat on the other side, the hare provided ample water, BOLLOCKS to that said the BUG who thrust down a large bottle of Leo with alacrity and seemed to be immediately looking for more to satisfy his addiction, but he knew the beer back at the truck was FREE and he'd have had to buy another one so, he (reluctantly) waited refusing to re-hydrate with water preferring to get pissed ASAP which was no doubt on the cards in the coming hours. Back finally at the Wat and a slow meander back to the Sanitary Section to the waiting cold beer and the circle.

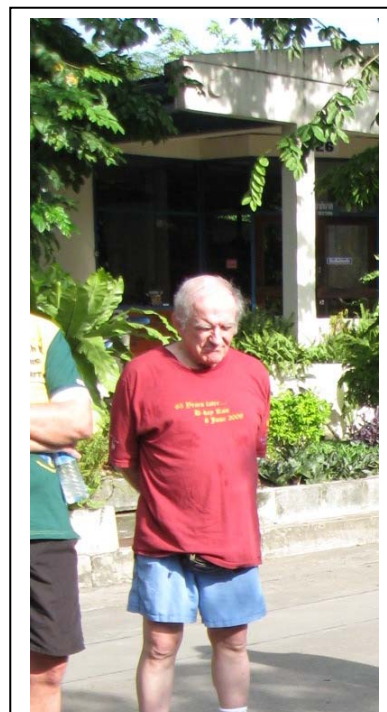

Finally after re-hydrating (mostly with H2O) but also beer, the GM called the circle & brought in the Hare for the rituals. Deemed a "good run" by the pack, Lecherous was rewarded and congratulated for a job well done. Returners, visitors you get the idea. Narest for his "fall down go boom" hijinks on the trail and SOM for running the run in high-heels (sort of wegies) but she walked mostly. Coconut Colonel and his wife brought their grand daughter to the family hash and she was delightful entertainment for the pack, especially the ladies who fawned on her. Coconut Colonel will be the next hare at the next run, watch your inboxes for details. Acknowledgments, Announcements etc etc and then the Hare advised on the locale of the ON ON ON which was at a food stall area near the Wat which the Hash has used many times before and The BUG who evidently knows the sweet proprietor and has an eye for her daughter, arranged with some enthusiasm and some incompetence, the food, the delivery and the collection of funds and despite being absolutely shit-faced drunk (true to form) he managed to get food on the table and not eat a morsel himself but he did imbibe on Ticklers bottle of whiskey which caused the BUG at times to fall sideways but never quite to hit the ground, or at least he was still standing (sort of...) when I made my way to a taxi at the end of another successful S2H3 event.

On On to the next run!

Anon

OK GM, I got all my shit in one bag .. should I have left some of this out on the trail perhaps???

Bug Returns to Sunday ... who is ABB, why do we have to put up with all the CRAP from the wimmen, god why am I here??/ Ahhh ... Beer!!!
